WELCOME TO THE AMERICAN CONSUMER COUNCIL'S Green C[™] Self-Certification Program

A Message from ACC's President & CEO

Welcome to the American Consumer Council's Criteria for the Green C[™] Self-Certification Program. The Green C[™] criteria are among the most comprehensive for your organization to earn the recognition and respect of consumers for your commitment to Sustainability, Environmental Stewardship, and Corporate Social Responsibility (CSR).

The American Consumer Council is a non-profit, tax-exempt organization serving more than 148,000+ members across the United States. In today's challenging economic environment, consumers want to do business with companies and organizations that care about consumers and our environment.

ACC created the Green C^{TM} Self-Certification Program to enable businesses of all types and sizes to take a first step toward certification through a self-assessment and response to a series of critical questions taken directly from our popular Green C^{TM} Certification Program. The Green C^{TM} Self-Certification program is less resource intensive, while allowing your company to be recognized by consumers for their commitment to environmental compliance and corporate social responsibility.

By satisfactorily completing the Green C^{TM} Self-Certification application, your organization will be recognized with the Green C^{TM} Self-Certification designation for one year and be listed among those companies and organizations that have been self-certified by the American Consumer Council.

Please review the instructions and Green C[™] Self-Certification criteria that follow. If you have any questions, please contact us at: info@americanconsumercouncil.org.

Green CSM Certification Level Determination

ACC's Green C[™] Self-Certification Assessor Team members are skilled professionals who have been trained and certified to assess applications from various industries and sectors. Specifically, Assessors will review your application to verify each response to the Green C[™] Self-Certification Criteria.

"Process" refers to the methods your organization uses to address the Item requirements. The three factors used to evaluate process are Approach, Deployment, and Learning. "Results" refers to your organization's outputs and outcomes in achieving requirements. The three factors used to evaluate results are Levels, Trends, and Comparisons.

"Approach" refers to the methods used to accomplish the process; the appropriateness of the methods to the Item requirements; the effectiveness of your use of the methods; the degree to which the Approach is repeatable, and to what extent the Approach is based on reliable data and information.

"Deployment" refers to the extent to which your Approach is applied in addressing the Item requirements' relevance and importance to your organization; to what extent your Approach is applied consistently; and, to what extent your Approach is used by all appropriate work units in your organization.

"Learning" refers to refining and improving your Approach through cycles of evaluation of the results achieved; encouraging breakthrough change to your Approach through innovation; and, sharing refinements and innovations with other relevant work units in your organization.

"Levels" refers to numerical information that places or positions an organization's results and performance on a meaningful measurement scale.

"Trends" refers to numerical information that shows the direction and rate of change for your results. Trends provide a time sequence of organizational performance. A minimum of three historical (not projected) data points generally is needed to ascertain a trend. "Comparisons" refers to your performance relative to appropriate comparisons, such as competitors or organizations similar to yours in your performance relative to benchmarks or industry leaders. Benchmarks refer to processes and results that represent best practices and performance for similar activities, either inside or outside the same industry.

How is Self-Certification eligibility determined?

This is not a competitive process, nor is there a limit as to the number of Self-Certification Recipients. The Green C^{TM} Self-Certification program applications are reviewed by certified members of its Board of Assessors, who review each application, and determine if the information provided is responsive to the multiple requirements of the Green C^{TM} Self-Certification Criteria.

No Site visits are required for Green C[™] Self-Certification applicants.

What does an organization receive if it is certified?

Each self-certified recipient receives the Green C[™] Self-Certification certificate bearing the Green C[™] Self-Certification logo, the name of the applicant, date received, Self-Certification designation inscribed. All certified recipients may publicize and advertise their self-certification designation.

Is the identity of applicants and the information submitted made available to the public?

The identity of all applicants remains confidential until an applicant is approved as a recipient of the Green C[™] Self-Certification. All information submitted by applicants is treated as confidential.

All ACC staff and Assessors are required to follow stringent confidential procedures when handling applicant information. However, they are allowed to transfer information to team members via e-mail, regular mail, fax, and telephone, when confidentiality procedures are followed.

What is expected of Green C[™] Self-Certification recipients?

Certified recipients are requested to share information about their exceptional performance practices with other organizations. However, recipients are not required to share proprietary information even if such information was part of their certification application. The principal mechanisms for sharing information are ACC conferences, workshops, and internet communications.

When can organizations apply?

ACC's Certification Program operates on a year-round cycle. While there is no application deadline, ACC does ask applicants to complete the "Intent to Apply Form" and send it to ACC at least ten days prior to submitting their Green C[™] Self-Certification Application. This helps ACC anticipate your application and alert our assessors in the event a review is necessary.

How do organizations apply?

The application process consists of submitting the Intent to Apply Form, and Green C^{TM} SelfCertification Application which fully addresses the Green C^{TM} Criteria questions. The application must summarize the organization's processes and results in response to all Items of the Criteria, and comply with the application instructions and forms contained in this document.

Self-Certification and Re-certification Status:

Self-Certification applicants enjoy a one-year status as "Self-Certified" by ACC. All applicants are encouraged to apply for the Green C^{TM} Certification.

Who is involved with ACC's Green C[™] Self-Certification Program?

The Consumer Green Council, an Advisory Board to the American Consumer Council, is responsible for the successful administration of this program and updating the certification criteria each year. The board consists of leading experts from business, health care, education, government, and nonprofit organizations. ACC has retained Quiet Excellence, LLC to coordinate assessor duties and perform all reviews of applications independent of ACC and its staff.
